"The Mississippian has a character that stems from his sense of place and of the significance of history. . . . A knowledge of family stories, that sense of generations and continuity, gives us identity." —Eudora Welty,
Mississippi Writers Talking I

Preface

A statistical register is a compendium of facts, a compilation of useful information. Thoroughly researched and meticulously edited, it is at once a handbook, a textbook, a directory, and a public record of the life of a state at a given point in time. This volume tells the statistical story of Mississippi for the years 1984 to 1988. But no collection of data, however complete, can tell the whole story of a state. The indefinable qualities that make a state unique cannot be reduced to lists. What truly sets this state apart from 49 others is not its climate or geography, its natural resources or its motto, its elected leadership or its organization of government. What makes Mississippi different is an ambience, a pervasive quality of life that binds people to place and to one another. America's first lady of letters, Mississippi's own Eudora Welty, called it our "sense of place." This is what links people of diverse cultures and attitudes with a feeling of shared experience. It is these ties — to family, community, custom — that give us distinction. These ties call our far-flung sons and daughters home and make permanent residents of those who thought they were only passing through. They give us what noted author Willie Morris of Yazoo City and Oxford calls a "perception of a common past — a past of guilt and tragedy and suffering but also of courage and nobility and caring." These ties, too, have enabled us to shape a new order while retaining traditional values, to harness the earth's bounty without despoiling the environment, to welcome technological growth without the impersonalization it can bring. What must be included, then, in our statistical register is something of these ties. For they are the continuity that links disparate bits of information into a whole, just as they link us to each other and to this place.

Introduction

"Mississippi to me is the beauty spot of creation — a dark, wide, spacious land that you can breathe in." — Tennessee Williams

Mississippians, like Columbus native Tennessee Williams expressed, have always felt a special kinship with the land. We know that we are blessed with abundant good fortune not of our own making. We have inherited our advantageous location on the Gulf of Mexico, halfway between its east and west extremities. We have been given our favorable climate — warm summers, forgiving winters, generous rainfall. We are the recipients of bountiful fresh waters — from the rolling, thunderous, majestic Mississippi to the quiet, meandering Okatoma Creek. We are the beneficiaries, too, of rich earth. Our roots run deep in the black, fertile soil of the Delta, and the gentle hills and valleys stir our souls. We are not far removed in time or distance from the wilderness: forests still cover over half our land. And all the while we count our natural blessings, we know that they have, at times, exacted a great price. We have learned the power of the hurricane, the wrath of the flood, the mercilessness of the drought. And we have learned, too, that to whom much is given, much will be required. Our sense of land as legacy has let us know that we hold the land in trust for another generation. Greenville historian Shelby Foote reminds us all: "No man owns the land — it is merely lent us for our lifetime."

We can describe, define, and otherwise differentiate Mississippi from her sister states in many ways, but perhaps none so exactly as by examining our geographic location. We are found north of the equator along the 90° west longitude meridian at about 29° north latitude. William Faulkner was more specific: "Mississippi begins in the lobby of a Memphis, Tennessee, hotel and extends south to the Gulf of Mexico." What the geographer and the novelist both know is that there is no place on earth like this place. With over 47,000 square miles, some 350 of which are inland water bodies, we rank 32nd in size. We are the geographic center of the South Central United States and closer to the U.S. population center than New York or Washington, D. C. We are, in other words, at the heart of things.

Mississippians speak of where they're from in no uncertain terms. We talk of Tallahatchie County and Sullivan's Hollow, the Free State of Jones and Mound Bayou, the Delta and the Hills, the country and the Coast. Alligator and Hot Coffee, Midnight and D'Lo, It and Soso all have special meaning for us. Kosciusko and Pelahatchie, Tupelo and Pascagoula, Natchez and Vicksburg, Jackson and Greenwood link us to heroes and ancestors. Our feeling for place gives us a sense of belonging much deeper than an address. Eudora Welty called place "the named, identified, concrete, exact and exacting, and therefore credible gathering spot of all that has been felt and is about to be experienced." She was speaking of place in fiction, but perhaps in a broader sense, her words give us insight into what is so special to us about this place Mississippi. "A place that ever was lived in," Miss Welty also wrote, "is like a fire that never goes out. It flares up, it smolders for a time, it is fanned or smothered by circumstance, but its being is intact, forever fluttering within it, the result of some original ignition. Sometimes it gives out glory. Sometimes its little light must be sought out to be seen, small and tender as a candle flame, but as certain." She was describing the little "ghost town," Rodney, which lies between Vicksburg and Natchez and which the Mississippi River moved off and left. But it could have been Raymond or Como, Wiggins or Iuka, Rosedale or Picayune, Philadelphia or Ocean Springs. Because even though people, like rivers, come and go, the qualities that give life to a place remain, "like a cup of the hands to hold a flame."

People

"We have been believers yielding substance for the world. With our hands have we fed a people and out of our strength have they wrung the necessities of a nation. Our song has filled the twilight and our hope has heralded the dawn." — Margaret Walker Alexander, "We Have Been Believers"

Jackson poet, novelist, and teacher Margaret Walker Alexander is a Mississippian by choice, not birth. Her song of the contributions of black Americans is no less a tribute to Mississippi's people of all colors and faiths and politics. For from their individual efforts have come significant achievements in arts and letters, music and dance, sports and entertainment, business and industry. Our pride in their accomplishments is boundless, and we claim their successes as our own. We celebrate them all — the native son who left the state soon after birth, the adopted daughter who now calls Mississippi home, the homegrown, hometown wonder who has always lived here and always will. We bask in their reflected glory. And, not too surprisingly, most all of them acknowledge their Mississippi heritage sooner or later. From Johnny Carson's reminiscences about his days at Millsaps College to Charley Pride's stories of his boyhood on a farm out from Sledge, Mississippians by birth, marriage, or erstwhile association recognize their connection with the state as something special. As Sterling Plump, native of Clinton but professor at the University of Illinois, wrote: "It dawned on me that the greatest wealth I possessed was my rural upbringing in Mississippi .... You can say I found my voice in my Mississippi background."

It is fair to say that if some of our people achieved because of their Mississippi background, others achieved in spite of it. Many of our most celebrated chidren knew poverty and oppression, yet from their grief and despair was born the music that America calls her most original — the blues. Many Mississippi achievers come from simple, humble backgrounds. Opera divas learned to sing in church. Pulitzer Prize-winning authors wrote for their school newspapers. Heisman trophy candidates scrimmaged in pastures. Fortune 500 Company CEO's worked their way up the family business. In short, the accomplishments of many of Mississippi's most noteworthy citizens were fostered in the home, family and community. Leontyne Price and Jerry Clower, Beth Henley and Walter Payton, Jimmie Rodgers and B. B. King, Elvis Presley and Tammy Wynette, Astronaut Richard Truly and Dr. Arthur Guyton all share a common heritage of the value of family and the nobility of work through their Mississippi connection.

Mississippians share another heritage, too. We are a people of diverse cultures, whatever our level of achievement. We are native Americans. We Choctaws inhabited this land from the earliest of times. We Spaniards and Frenchmen are descendants of the European explorers who charted the American frontier. We Englishmen staked our own claim to the land in later years and with the Scotchmen and the Irish settled down to tame the wilderness. We Africans worked the land and dictated a new definition of freedom to this country. We Chinese and Italians labored in the fields and brought a new work ethic to the world of business. We Poles and Slavs settled the coastline and built an industry from the sea. We Vietnamese, very lately come, are adding our skills and way of life to this rich mix. And all our children are reaping the bounty of our labors, creating new frontiers for their own exploration. This, then, is what sets Mississippi apart and, at the same time, unites it. Her people. Their diversity. Willie Morris has said that our most precious asset is memory. It is what distinguishes Mississippi people from everyone else. He cautions us: "The young people of Mississippi must learn to remember who they are and where they come from. They must be encouraged to remember. There is a message to be carried." Indeed, there is.

Resources

"Blessed are we among all the peoples .... For in the brown and everlasting flowing river is the proof of destiny, and it is yours. Mississippi. Mississippi." — Hodding Carter, Jr., "The River"

The Mississippi River, which defines most of our western perimeter, has a certain fascination for Mississippians, as Greenville journalist Hodding Carter described. It is at once a natural and industrial resource. It has shaped agriculture and transportation and determined the location of towns for us. We have been awed and challenged by its might. It has inspired artist and poet and songmaker alike. And it has been the subject of study by scientist and engineer, sailor and fisherman. Although most Mississippians rarely come in contact with the River, we feel its presence and we understand its powerful influence. In some ways, we feel special, singled out, as if the River chose us as its own. We have a sense of ownership, as if it belonged to us and no one else.

What we feel for the River and what it has given us is true of our other resources and their development as well. Agriculture is marked by great diversity, thanks to our fertile soil, temperate climate, and ingenuity. We are among the nation's top ten producers of cotton, rice, pecans, sorghum, sweetpotatoes, and soybeans. In livestock production, we rank fifth in broilers and have a healthy share of the market for eggs, hogs, cattle, and milk. Catfish farming is a significant growth industry for Mississippi, and we lead the nation in farm-raised catfish production. Commercial fishing on the Gulf Coast is enjoying a resurgence as oysters, shrimp, crab, menhaden, sea trout, red snapper, and other varieties of fish and shellfish are harvested, supporting a number of industries. The coastal waters also abound in gamefish popular with sportsmen. Recreational fishing for bass, crappie, bluegill, and channel catfish provided by numerous freshwater lakes, streams, and reservoirs is an attraction for residents as well as tourists. Our waters also provide industry with a bountiful, clean supply and are a significant power resource. The great River and the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway link us to the nation's heartland, and the ports along the great Gulf open a gateway for the world. Mississippi woodlands, with pine, oak, hickory, gum, and cypress predominant, total almost 17 million acres. Our forests are a valuable base for lumbering and timber-related industries, and we lead the nation in the number of managed tree farms. Like our waters, our forests provide habitat for diverse wildlife and offer a wealth of recreational opportunities. The Mississippi earth is also rich in mineral deposits, from clays to sandstone, from salt to limestone. Oil and gas exploration occurs throughout the state, with Mississippi claiming one of the largest natural gas areas in the nation. We rank ninth in the overall production of these fuels. Coal and lignite deposits, although less extensive, offer promise for productive mining. The earth is a great provider — of our economic base as well as our pleasure — and it is little wonder that we hold it in such esteem.

Although agriculture and land-related resource development are important to Mississippi's economy, manufacturing is our leading employer, followed by wholesale and retail trade, government, and services. Our shift toward an industrialized state has brought about many changes — in population, education and training, and transportation. We have moved toward urban centers, diversified our employment mixture, developed new markets, and acquired new skills. We work in chemicals, printing, textiles, metals, apparel, and machinery. We have applied the tools of technology to an incredible variety of jobs, and in so doing we have made a name for ourselves around the world. We test fire all of the space shuttle's main engines at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Bay St. Louis. In Jackson, we're Vickers' North American manufacturing headquarters for aerospace, marine and defense operations. We print National Geographic Magazine at W. F. Hall Company in Corinth. Weyerhaeuser Corporation made the largest capital investment in its history with the construction of its first thermomechanical paper mill in Columbus. We run the largest single line production unit of titanium oxide in the world for Dupont Company in Delisle. At Lockheed-Georgia in Meridian we assemble the components for the Hercules and Tristar aircraft. At Ingalls Division of Litton Industries in Pascagoula, we are the nation's foremost builder of the Navy's most sophisticated ships. At Peavey Electronics in Meridian, we are the nation's and perhaps the world's largest producer of musical instrument amplification equipment. Mississippi Chemical Corporation of Yazoo City and Pascagoula leads the country as a co-op producer of anhydrous ammonia, urea, and ammonium nitrate. We develop much of the leading edge of optical technology at Bausch and Lomb in Ocean Springs. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Waterways Experiment Station in Vicksburg is the largest hydraulic research laboratory in the world. And we conducted the world's first human lung and heart transplants at the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson. We have produced, in other words, not only a wealth of products but an abundance of ideas.

We have come to place high value on our most productive and promising of resources — our intellect, especially that of our children. Sweeping education reform legislation of recent years has set the standard for the nation. We have committed ourselves to providing optimum educational opportunity through strong support for public schools. Higher education, too, receives significant attention. Vocational education and training, offered through one of the largest and most progressive junior college systems in the country, is a partner to industrial development. Eight state-supported institutions of higher learning round out our public education system. Evidence of the state's commitment to this area is the fact that the largest percentage of the tax revenues generated in Mississippi is earmarked for education.

Our resources are the basis of what we call our quality of life, which is enhanced by cultural, spiritual, and recreational opportunities of unending variety. From arts and crafts festivals and fairs, to community orchestras, theatres, opera and dance companies, Mississippians share in the festivities. One-of-a-kind celebrations — like the Neshoba County Fair, the Dixie National Rodeo, the International Ballet Competition, the Delta Blues Festival, and the Choctaw Indian Fair — bring people of ethnic and cultural diversity together. Our architectural heritage and our history are preserved with care and are celebrated in pilgrimages and pageants, living museums and libraries. State and national parks and campgrounds, spectator and participatory sports activities, and educational adventures abound — from the Natchez Trace to Vicksburg Military Park, from the Jackson Planetarium to the State Museum of Natural Science, from 25 miles of white sand beaches to the Petrified Forest, from the Grand Village of the Natchez to the Marine Education Center Aquarium.

We are defined, then, by our resources — natural, man-made, human. We face a challenge as we develop them — "to protect the best of what we have and to increase its availability for the future." As author, teacher, and former Congressman Frank Smith suggests, "We must face the great opportunities that lie ahead and utilize our sense of place to make their fulfillment and their impact even greater." Our sense of place, he reminds us, has been used for dubious and devious purposes. It has been used to preserve "traditions" that had to change, to thwart progress that was bound to happen. It was used to divide us in many ways. On the other hand, he says, "place was a means more than anything that held us together." And it is this binding sense of place that we must cherish and preserve.

History

Mississippi is a state born of the American frontier, a place which was long the domain of the Indian until the Spanish and French explorers arrived in the 16th and 17th centuries. Hernando De Soto, with his goldseeking, plundering Spanish conquistadors, came upon Mississippi soil in 1540. In May 1541, De Soto and his men reached the vast Mississippi River, which the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Natchez, and Yazoo Indians, along with their prehistoric ancestors, had travelled long before.

A century and a half elapsed before a new breed of explorers, this time the French, began to make their mark on the history of this state. Robert Cavelier, Sieur de La Salle began his slow, tedious exploration in 1680, and finally by March 1682, he set foot on Mississippi soil across from the mouth of the Arkansas River in what is now Bolivar County. He planted a cross in a Quapaw Indian village on the Arkansas side of the river and claimed the entire Mississippi Valley for the King of France. As he proceeded down the river, La Salle made numerous stops that included visits with the Natchez and Coron Tribes in present-day Adams County.

Pierre le Moyne, Sieur d'Iberville sailed into the Gulf of Mexico in 1699. D'Iberville proceeded down the chain of islands off the Alabama and Mississippi coasts, and finally, on the eastern shore of Biloxi Bay at the site of present-day Ocean Springs, he established the first European settlement in what is now Mississippi.

Jean Baptiste le Moyne Sieur de Bienville, the younger brother of d'Iberville who had been part of the earlier expedition, came in 1716 to the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River where he erected Fort Rosalie at Natchez as a French outpost of the coastal colony. Bienville became the governor of French Louisiana, which included the future Mississippi Territory.

In 1763, following the French and Indian War, Louisiana was partitioned with the British taking over all of the territory east of the Mississippi River, with the exception of New Orleans, which was ceded to Spain. Spain also assumed control of the French territory west of the river. As a result, much of what is now Mississippi became British West Florida.

During the American Revolution in 1779, the Spanish took control of West Florida. As a result of the Treaty of San Lorenzo in 1795, Spain surrendered to the United States its claim to the territory north of the 31st parallel and subsequently evacuated Natchez in 1798. The area at that time was established as the Mississippi Territory. The first territorial capital was Natchez, and Winthrop Sargent was appointed the first territorial governor. At that time, the Mississippi Territory was bounded on the south by the 31st parallel, on the west by the Mississippi River, on the north by a line running eastward from the mouth of the Yazoo River, and on the east by the Chattahoochie River.

In 1804, Congress extended the Territory northward to the Tennessee line. Finally in 1817, the Mississippi Territory was divided into the State of Mississippi and the Alabama Territory. Then on December 10, 1817, Mississippi became the 20th state of the Union. David Holmes, who had been territorial governor since 1809, became the first state governor and Natchez the first state capital.

After several moves, the capital found its home in Jackson in 1822. Formerly known as LeFleur's Bluff overlooking the Pearl River, the site was designated by the legislature as the capital and given the name "Jackson" in honor of General Andrew Jackson.

The introduction of the improved Mexican variety of cotton into Mississippi around 1820 strengthened cotton as the state's major staple crop, and with the abundance of cheap land, high prices, and easy credit, an economic boom was set off in the 1830's. Thousands of immigrants, speculators, and farmers moved into Mississippi, and with the importation of slaves at the rate of 10,000 annually, the plantation system evolved. During this period, most of Mississippi's Indian population was removed to Oklahoma.

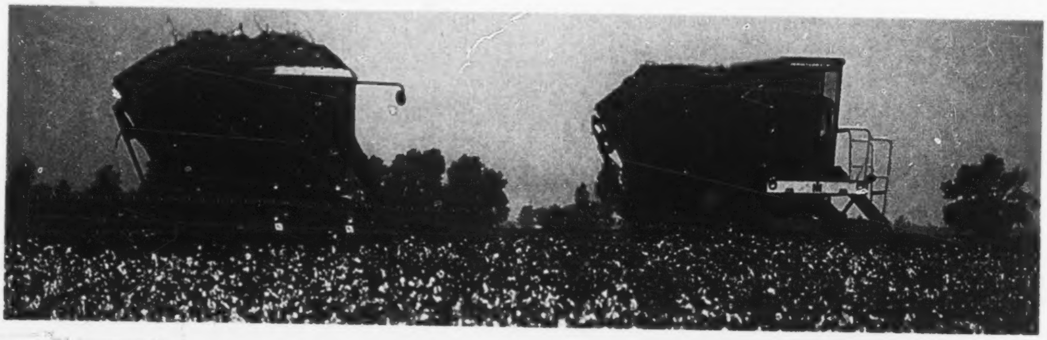
The boom temporarily subsided with the financial panic of 1837, but aided by the increased agricultural development of the Yazoo-Mississippi Delta, a new wave of prosperity rose in the 1850s as the state entered the "Golden Age of the Cotton Kingdom."

By the end of the antebellum period, the agricultural economy of Mississippi was highly prosperous. Land values reached as much as $18 an acre for improved land.

On January 9, 1861, Mississippi's Secession Convention enacted the Ordinance of Secession, making Mississippi the second state to secede from the Union. Prior to ratifying the constitution of the Confederate States of America on March 29, 1861, the state existed for a brief period of time as "The Republic of Mississippi." Mississippi's Jefferson Davis, who had a distinguished career of service to the nation, was elected to serve as President of the Confederacy.

Many of the battles of the Civil War were fought in the state, and the wealth and resources of Mississippians were sapped. Of the 78,000 Mississippians who went off to war in the Confederate service, more than 59,000 either died or were wounded.

Vicksburg, the major goal of the Union forces who sought to open the Mississippi River southward to the sea, fell to General U. S. Grant's army on July 4, 1863, after 47 days of withering siege. The fate of the Confederacy was virtually sealed by the fall of Vicksburg. When the end finally came in 1865, Mississippi was in financial ruin, and although black Mississippians were at last to have their freedom, the economic future was bleak.



An uneasy and difficult period of reconstruction followed the war. The military rule that was established in 1867 came to an end on February 23, 1870, when President Grant signed into law a bill readmitting Mississippi into the Union.

Mississippi again turned to cotton as the staple of its economy, but the recovery was less than robust. The sharecropper-tenant system grew out of the period because there was an abundance of land and large numbers of unemployed and unskilled workers with little capital available. Although towns and businesses were also in a state of economic depression, by the end of the 1860s and into the 1870s, there were attempts to construct railroads and establish new industries.

Timber — the millions of acres of virgin pine and hardwoods — became an easy prize for exploitation in the 1880s. Outside capitalists acquired huge holdings of timber lands in South Mississippi, and the subsequent expansion of railroad lines into the state provided a ready-made industry of cutting and shipping lumber to northern markets.

Mississippi in the period from 1904 to 1915 became the nation's third largest timber-producing state. The timber wealth, however, began to dissipate from the profligate lumbering, and by the 1920s, the virgin forests had virtually been denuded.

As an agriculturally oriented state, public opinion was against large corporate ownerships of timber lands, and this grew into an almost hostile attitude toward development of any sizeable industrial plants in the first decade of the 20th Century. Consequently, Mississippi was left behind, while many other states benefitted from the industrial revolution in the pre-World War I era. Eventually, the agrarian domination yielded to reality, and Mississippi began its slow climb toward a stronger industrial base, while at the same time improving agricultural yield with crop diversification and reforestation of timber land.

A "Balance Agriculture with Industry" program initiated in the 1930s saw significant increases in manufacturing in the state. Among the resulting changes were a decline in the number of small farms, the growth of agribusiness, and population shifts from rural areas to towns and cities. Education began to address skills development to meet the employment requirements of new industry. By 1965, Mississippi's industrial employment exceeded its agricultural employment.

In recent years, other changes have made their mark on Mississippi, especially political and social changes. Opportunities in education and employment opened up many possibilities to Mississippi's people. An aggressive program of planned economic development, supported by new laws and progressive leadership, is guiding Mississippi optimistically toward tomorrow.

Post Script

"Perhaps it is the sense of place that gives us the belief that passionate things, in some essence, endure. Whatever is significant and whatever is tragic in its story live as long as the place does, though they are unseen. And the new life will be built upon these things." — Eudora Welty, "Some Notes on River Country"

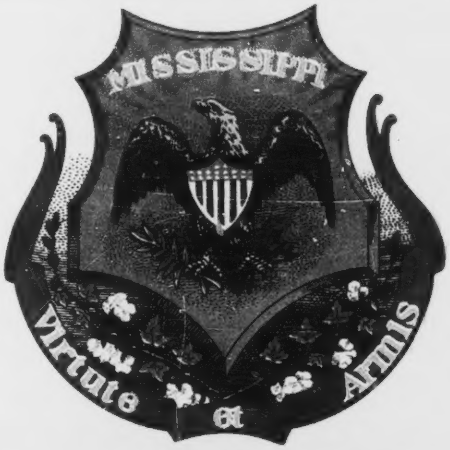
State Symbols

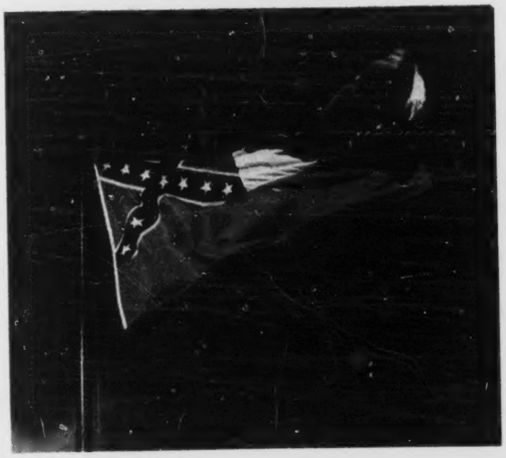
State Coat-of-Arms

The committee to design a Coat-of-Arms was appointed by legislative action February 7, 1894, and the design proposed by that committee was accepted and became the official Coat-of-Arms. The committee recommended for the Coat-of-Arms a "Shield in color blue, with an eagle upon it with extended pinions, holding in the right talon a palm branch and a bundle of arrows in the left talon, with the word 'Mississippi' above the eagle; the lettering on the shield and the eagle to be in gold; below the shield two branches of the cotton stalk, saltierwise, as in submitted design, and a scroll below extending upward and one each side three-fourths of the length of the shield; upon the scroll, which is to be red, the motto be printed in gold letters upon white spaces, as in design accompanying, the motto to be — VIRTUTE et ARMIS."



State Flag

The committee to design a State Flag was appointed by legislative action February 7, 1894, and provided that the flag reported by the committee should become the official flag. The committee recommended for the flag "one with width two-thirds of its length; with the union square, in width two-thirds of the width of the flag; the ground of the union to be red and a broad blue saltier thereon, bordered with white and emblazoned with thirteen (13) mullets or five-pointed stars, corresponding with the number of the original States of the Union; the field to be divided into three bars of equal width, the upper one blue, the center one white, and the lower one extending the whole length of the flag, red — the national colors; the staff surmounted with a spear-head and a battle-axe below; the flag to be fringed with gold, and the staff gilded with gold." The Canton Corner is a replica of the Confederate Battle Flag.



State Bird

Found in all sections of Mississippi, the cheerful Mockingbird was selected as the official State Bird by the Women's Federated Clubs and by the State Legislature in 1944.

State Flower and Tree

An election was held in November 1900 to select a State Flower. Votes were submitted by 23,278 school children. The magnolia received 12,745 votes, the cotton blossom 4,171 and the cape jasmine 2,484. There were a few votes for other flowers. The magnolia was officially designated as the State Flower by the 1952 Legislature.

In 1935, the Director of Forestry started a movement by which to select a State Tree for Mississippi, to be selected by nomination and election by the school children of the State. Four nominations were made — the magnolia, oak, pine and dogwood. The magnolia received by far the largest majority. On April 1, 1938, the Mississippi Legislature officially designated the magnolia as the State Tree. Chapter 365, Laws of Mississippi of 1938.

State Motto

The State motto of Mississippi, Virtute et Armis, meaning by valor and arms, was suggested by the Honorable James Rhea Preston, a native of Virginia, who was at the time Superintendent of Education in the State of Mississippi.

Ref. Section 37-13-7,

Everyday Flag Etiquette

General Display

It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flagstaffs in the open. However, when a patriotic effect is desired, the flag may be displayed twenty-four hours a day if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness.

1. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, The union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, that is, to the observer's left. When displayed in a window, the flag should be displayed in the same way, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street.

No other flag or pennant should be placed above, or if on the same level, to the right of the flag of the United States of America, except during church services conducted by naval chaplains at sea . . . for personnel of the Navy . . . when the church pennant may be flown above the flag.

No person shall display the flag of the United Nations or any other national or international flag equal, above, or in a position of superior prominence or honor to, or in place of, the flag of the United States at any place within the United States or any territory or possession thereof; Provided, that nothing in this section shall make unlawful the continuance of the practice heretofore followed of displaying the flag of the United Nations in a position of superior prominence or honor, and other national flags in positions of equal prominence or honor, with that of the flag of the United States at the headquarters of the United Nations.

2. When flags of States, cities, or localities, or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the latter should always be at the peak.

3. When the flags are flown from adjacent staffs, the flag of the United States should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant may be placed above the flag of the United States or to the United States flag's right.

4. The flag of the United States of America, when it is displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

5. The flag of the United States of America should be at the center and at the highest point of the group when a number of flags of States or localities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs.

6. When flags of two or more nations are displayed, they are to be flown from separate staffs of the same height. The flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

Churches, Auditoriums

7. When used on a speaker's platform, the flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker. When displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium, the flag of the United States of America should hold the position of superior prominence, in advance of the audience, and in the position of honor at the clergyman's or speaker's right as he faces the audience. Any other flag so displayed should be placed on the left of the clergyman or speaker or the right of the audience.

Half-Staff

The flag, when flown at half-staff, should be first hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. The flag should be again raised to the peak before it is lowered for the day. On Memorial Day the flag should be displayed at half-staff until noon only, then raised to the top of the staff. By order of the President, the flag shall be flown at half-staff upon the death of principal figures of the United States Government and the Governor of a State, territory or possession, as a mark of respect to their memory. In the event of the death of other officials or foreign dignitaries, the flag is to be displayed at half-staff according to Presidential instructions or orders, or in accordance with recognized customs or practices not inconsistent with law.

In the event of the death of a present or former official of the government of any State, territory or possession of the United States, the Governor of that State, territory or possession may proclaim that the National flag may be flown at half-staff.

Education

Public Schools

Mississippi has been educating students in public schools for well over 100 years. Schools now are vastly different than they were then. Today, as we educate the leaders of the next century, we are entering the most exciting period in our educational history.

Education in Mississippi is a complex enterprise into which much of the state's public and private sector resources are placed. While per capita expenditures are small comparatively on a national scale, these expenditures represent a substantial share of state government's expenditures. Expenditures for education represented over 60 percent of all General Fund expenditures by state government in fiscal year 1984, a share not unlike those of previous years.

In recognition of the importance of education, in addition to a recognition of the limited resources available, Mississippians are becoming increasingly aware of the need for delivering each dollar expended. New approaches are being developed to address historical needs. Questions are being asked and answered as never before. The ultimate responsibility for meeting these challenges will lie with the recently restructured State Board of Education and the newly appointed State Superintendent of Education.

A Hope for the Future

Mississippians statewide in the 1980's have found hope in their economic futures with a renewed emphasis on the value of education which the Education Reform Act has legislatively mandated. This far-reaching legislation represented in its 96 pages a trust by Mississippians that they were to be given the opportunity to be competitive with all others. In many respects, the Act represented a break with the past by offering to many the opportunity of looking forward to the future.

Since the historic passage two years ago of this Education Reform Act, states across the country have attempted to mold the reforms to their needs. For the first time in a generation, Mississippi's approach to education is being brought forward as a model.

The Education Reform Act of 1982 brought with it dramatic changes in the way that schools will be operated in Mississippi through the remainder of the 1980's. New programs and an increased commitment provide the schools with the opportunity for excellence.

The continued role of the State Board of Education is to develop policy for elementary and secondary education. The State Department of Education is primarily a planning and service organization whose role is to assist local schools. While responsible for some administrative and regulatory duties, the Department's efforts are directed primarily to helping local districts provide the best educational programs possible.

The responsibilities extend from kindergarten through junior colleges and adult education. The Department's primary functions are to supervise schools according to state law, provide leadership, dispense school funds, and administer school finance.

The Department works to help insure that schools meet minimum standards in instruction, curriculum, school construction, transportation, teacher certification, vocational education, accreditation, and other areas.

While these responsibilities will continue, education will undergo numerous program changes resulting from the Education Reform Act. These include the following:

Accreditation

A new, performance-based system of school accreditation, which places more emphasis on administrator, teacher and pupil performance, is established.

Certification

A Commission on Teacher and Administrator Education, Certification and Development was established. This body, subject to State Board approval, sets standards and criteria for all public teacher education programs, for initial teacher certification, for renewal of teacher certificates, and for provisional certification. This group is also responsible for in-service training/ professional development programs.

Compulsory School Attendance

Compulsory attendance is required of every child who was six but not yet eight on or before September 1, 1983. The requirement is extended, adding one year of age each year, until the year 1989-90. There are also provisions for fines and imprisonment for failure to comply.

Dropout Prevention

The SDE provides local school districts technical assistance in developing, implementing and administering programs designed to keep children in school voluntarily and to prevent dropouts.

School Executive Management Institute

The institute is responsible for setting standards and developing programs to train local school administrators. Emphasis is placed on the development of administrative and management skills. All local school administrators are required to attend.

Five-Year Plan

The SDE maintains a five-year plan for improvement of the Mississippi Public School System. This plan sets forth objectives for system performance and improvements. The plan is also the basis for budget requests and legislative initiatives.

Graduation Requirements

Beginning with the 1984-85 school year, each district school board was required to establish minimum graduation standards. These included minimum performance standards in reading, writing and mathematics; a basic skills test; and completion of a minimum number of academic credits.

Kindergarten and Early Childhood Education

By 1986, local districts shall have kindergarten programs. Assistant teachers have been added in all classrooms in grades 1-3 beginning with the first grade in 1983, second grade in 1984 and third grade in 1985.

Statewide Testing Program

This program established competency testing in grades 3, 5, 8 and 11. These new tests complement the ongoing testing programs in grades 4, 6 and 8. Results of these tests provide data for improvement in the operation and management of public schools.

Studies

The Reform Act mandated that several studies be undertaken, including subject matter mastery and teaching out of one's field of certification. Both will be updated annually.

The reforms package is only a start. It does begin the process of giving to all students an equal opportunity to discover and attain their potentials. Its continued success will require the continued involvement of all parents, teachers, administrators, and everyone else in Mississippi.

The SBE

Following the passage of the Education Reform Act of 1982 and the adoption of the constitutional amendment in 1983, the structure of the State Board of Education changed dramatically. Historically comprised of the State Superintendent of Education, the Attorney General, and the Secretary of State, the new board is comprised of nine lay members appointed by the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Types of School Districts

Basically, there are three types of school districts in Mississippi: county unit, consolidated and municipal separate. The districts operate as follows:

County Unit - This type of district embraces all territory of a county except the area of any municipal separate district. The County Board of Education is governing body. The five-member board is elected by popular vote, one from each supervisor's district, while the County Superintendent is elected countywide by popular vote for a four-year term. The County Board of Supervisors levies local contribution to schools.

Consolidated - This type of district is composed of less than the entire county and has its own board of trustees who are elected by popular vote. These districts act through the County Board of Education and do not levy a district tax for contribution to the minimum foundation program. There are two types of consolidated districts: regular and line. The territory of the regular consolidated district lies within a single county, while the territory of the line consolidated district lies in more than one county. The County Board of Supervisors is the taxing authority. The Consolidated School Board appoints the superintendent.

Municipal Separate - This type of district always includes a city or large town. It may or may not include additional adjacent territory outside the corporate limits. The board of trustees is appointed by the municipality's governing body. These trustees serve for staggered, five-year terms. These districts do not participate in countywide school funds, nor do they pay taxes into such funds. The School Board appoints the superintendent. These districts request the governing authority of the municipality to levy funds for the support of the school district.

Types of Teacher Certificates

There are four types of teacher or administrator certificates in Mississippi, all of which require a passing score on the National Teacher Examinations. After July 1, 1986 all new teachers and administrators must complete provisional certification. They are:

AAAA Certificate - requires a doctorate

AAA Certificate - requires a master's degree + 30 semester hours

AA Certificate - requires a master's degree

A Certificate - requires a bachelor's degree

School Trust Lands in the Choctaw and Chickasaw Cession Areas

Among the ways that Mississippi supports its public schools is through its School Lands Program, a program with origins dating back to the Northwest Ordinance of 1785. The Southern three-quarters (Choctaw area) of Mississippi still benefits from the existence of these Sixteenth Section Lands. The northern one-quarter (Chickasaw Cession Area) of the state's school trust lands no longer exist.

The historical development of the School Trust Lands. . . .

In 1804, land ceded by Georgia was given to the Mississippi Territory, and sixteenth section land was set aside.

In 1817, Mississippi became a state after being so duly authorized by Congress. The State Constitution was adopted which included, "no land granted for the use of such township schools shall ever be sold by any authority in this state."

Then in 1818, the Mississippi Legislature gave the power to county judges to lease sixteenth section land. In 1820, the statute was amended to require judges to direct the county sheriffs to lease the lands. Shortly thereafter, in 1823, the Mississippi Legislature gave control to the President and Directors of the County Literary Fund. In 1824, the Mississippi Legislature passed control to the ownership township — five member board of trustees elected by voters of the township.

In 1830, the Mississippi Legislature chartered the Planters' Bank to lease sixteenth section land and issued 99 year leases and to allow individuals to borrow the monies that were accumulated from sixteenth section land. Seven years later, the Planters' Bank failed. In 1846, the Legislature placed schools under county boards of school commissioners.

Then in 1871, during the Reconstruction era, the Legislature approved sale of sixteenth section land, but repealed that 1871 law in 1877. Bear in mind that perhaps deeds of conveyance for fee simple ownership to sixteenth section land can be recognized only during this period (1871-1877).

In 1880, sixteenth section land was placed under the control of county boards of supervisors.

The Constitutional Convention of 1890 continued to protect sixteenth section land from abuses. In Section 211, the Legislature was instructed not to sell any sixteenth section land.

In 1924, the supervisors were required to hire competent persons to ascertain true conditions of title and to file suits if necessary to confirm title which was a follow-up to the 1910 Legislative mandate for a complete abstract of title for each section with same being forwarded to the Land Commissioner.

In 1958, supervision and management of forest lands was transferred from the boards of supervisors to the Forestry Commission. Land Commissioner was directed to survey and classify all sixteenth section land.

Then in 1974, law required all surface leases to have local school district approval.

The Reform Act, which was passed in 1978, placed management control with local school district boards and distributed the authority and duties in the control of sixteenth section lands among various public officials and agencies.

Chickasaw Cession

The history of the Chickasaw Cession runs from 1832 to the present. A treaty of cession was made and entered into by General John Coffee, who was duly authorized by the President of the United States, and the whole Chickasaw Nation, in General Council assembled at the Council House, on October 20, 1832. The results of this treaty ceded the lands north of a line drawn from the southwest corner of Tunica County to the northwest corner of Lowndes County, embracing in whole or in part 24 counties. Terms of this treaty specified that lands should be surveyed and sold at an agreed upon minimum price, proceeds from which were to go to the Chickasaw Indian Tribe. This treaty is known as the Pontotoc Creek Treaty and was ratified on March 1, 1833, after which the immediate survey was authorized and land sales begun. As news spread that cheap land was available, it appears that buyers came and land sales were rapid, and it also appears that these rapid transactions contributed to the neglecting of sixteenth section reservation for the benefit of township schools. This mistake was noted and the United States Government, in an effort to correct this error, issued lands in lieu of those sold sixteenth sections in various parts of the state, most of which being given from lands the government owned in the Delta counties.

The total amount of land ceded in the Chickasaw Purchase was 6,283,804 acres. The 36th part of this amount was 174,555 acres, being the amount of land given in lieu of those sixteenth section sales. A review of the original survey approved February 8, 1838, reestablished the north boundary approximately three miles south of the Tennessee line and reduced the amount of acres to 6,071,169.2, but apparently the amount of lieu lands remained constant. The Mississippi Legislature in 1848 authorized a 99 year lease "renewable forever" at a price not less than $6 per acre, the proceeds to be a charge upon the state to be held in trust. The total sale yielded approximately $1,047,330. The 1856 legislature authorized the use of these funds at eight percent interest to be paid to the counties in the Chickasaw Cession on a per acre basis. Loans were made to various railroad companies at an interest of eight percent. A legislative act in 1863 authorized the railroads to pay their indebtedness in gold, silver, or treasury notes of the state into the State Treasury to be used to defray ordinary state expenses. In so doing, the state bound itself to pay the interest to the various counties in the Chickasaw Cession. The railroad companies eventually defaulted in payments or made settlements with worthless paper resulting in almost a total loss. Since this time, the state Legislature has appropriated monies representing the amount of interest lost due to these investment failures; however, the amount of interest has been reduced to six percent since enactment of the 1890 Mississippi Constitution, Section 212. The amount of this Chickasaw Cession school money appropriated by the Legislature annually is $62,191. This amount is disbursed in equal payments on May 1 and November 1. The above amount represents approximately 36¢ per acre per year.

Mississippi Public Junior Colleges

Districts and Campuses

The creation, establishment, maintenance, and operation of public junior colleges is authorized by Section 37-29-1, Mississippi Code. The extension of curriculum in agricultural high schools and certain municipal school districts to include the freshmen and/or sophomore years of college work was authorized in 1924. In 1928 the Legislature authorized the establishment of junior colleges at these schools and provided that other school districts and counties could unite in the establishment of junior colleges.

There are fifteen junior college districts in 1984-85 operating on thirty-four centers. These include nineteen comprehensive campuses, two predominately academic centers, five postsecondary vocational-technical centers, and eight secondary or combination secondary/postsecondary vocational-technical centers.

Mission

The mission of the early junior colleges was to offer academic coursework - the freshman and sophomore year of college work. Upgraded and expanded vocational or trade programs of education in line with World War II efforts and the retraining of its veterans broadened the mission during the 1940's. Statewide missions assigned to junior colleges in the late 1950's and the 1960 decade included nursing education and vocational and technical education.

Since 1950, the Mississippi Code (Section 37-29-1) sets the basic missions of these institutions as follows:

(1) Offer courses correlated to those of four-year institutions - transfer (academic) programs;

(2) Offer education and training for occupations - vocational and technical programs; and,

(3) Offer courses and other acceptable educational measures to individuals and groups - "other" programs.

Public junior colleges are the delivery system for postsecondary vocational-technical education in Mississippi. Nearly five hundred approved courses afford a choice of over one hundred unduplicated occupational programs. Programs which reflect needs distributed throughout the state are offered at most junior college centers.

Organization and Governance

The organization and governance of the public junior colleges has been evolving since 1922. Sixty years later, the final decision making authority for the operation of the fifteen junior colleges in Mississippi continues to reside with the local board of trustees and administration.

Each junior college has a local board of trustees which consists of six (6) members from each county that originally established junior colleges and a minimum of two trustees for each county that joined the district subsequent to its establishment. Each county may have six members. The County Superintendent of Education sits ex officio in each county while the remaining trustees are appointed by the County Board of Supervisors. Trustees serve a five-year staggered term. In terms of governance, the statutes of Mississippi make the local boards preeminent and provide that Boards of Trustees "... shall be general government of the junior college ..." and "... shall have full power to do all things necessary to the successful operation of the district."

Junior College Commission

The Junior College Commission was established in 1928 as the state regulatory agency and the controlling agency for the establishment of new junior colleges.

The Mississippi legislature revised the Junior College Commission to its present ten member form in 1962 (Mississippi Code 1972; 37-29-11). The Commission consists of the State Superintendent of Education as chairman; three university presidents, three junior college presidents, and three lay members appointed by the Governor. The Division of Junior Colleges in the State Department of Education serves as the executive arm of the Junior College Commission and administers the state laws and policies which pertain to junior colleges.

Several other state agencies exert authority over certain programs conducted by the junior colleges. These include the Mississippi Board for Vocational-Technical Education, the Board of Trustees of Institutions of Higher Learning, and the State Board of Education.

Finance

The junior college budgets for the 1984-85 session showed that operating funds were derived from the following sources: student fees - 20%; local taxes - 16%; state appropriations (direct and indirect) - 57%; and federal - 7%.

Approximately seventy-five percent of operating funds are expended for salaries and fringe benefits of employees. Sixty percent is spent for costs directly related to instruction.

Institutions of Higher Learning

The Mississippi Constitution was amended in 1943 to create a Board of Trustees free of gubernatorial control to direct the operations of the state-supported institutions of higher learning. The Board assumed its duties on May 8, 1944.

This constitutional Board of Trustees provides management and control of the public universities of Mississippi. The constitution provides that the Board members be appointed by the Governor with the required approval of the Senate. This public higher education governing board consists of thirteen members: one from each of the seven congressional districts as existed in 1944; one from each of the three Supreme Court districts; two appointed from the state-at-large; and one member, from DeSoto County, who is appointed as the trustee for the La Bauve fund and who can vote only on matters pertaining to the University of Mississippi.

Every four years the Governor appoints five members to the Board, four of whom serve twelve-year terms and one, the La Bauve trustee, who serves a four-year term.

The Executive Secretary and Director of the Board of Trustees is responsible for administering the policies and decisions of the Board. A professional staff with the highest level of expertise in academic programs, fiscal matters, information, student financial aid, and physical facilities is under the direction of the Board's Executive Secretary and Director.

The Board of Trustees meets on the third Thursday of each month with committee meetings scheduled on the preceding Wednesday. The Board acts upon recommendations from ten standing committees — the Agriculture and Forestry Committee; Athletics Committee; Buildings Committee; Finance Committee; Instruction, Administration and Policy Committee; Law School Committee; Legal Committee; Medical Affairs Committee; Research Committee; and Student Advisory Committee.

The Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning conducts degree-credit courses on eleven established campuses, which include the eight public universities, the University of Mississippi Medical Center, the Mississippi Research and Development Center, and the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory; at eight degree-granting off-campus centers; at four resident centers; and in extension classes throughout the state. The available programs range from a wide variety of undergraduate disciplines to most professional fields. All eight universities offer master's-level programs, while five have programs at the education specialist level, and five offer doctoral-level teaching and research.

Enrollment figures for the fall term of 1984 at the eight universities including the University of Mississippi Medical Center showed 53,678 students pursuing academic degree credit in the system. On-campus totals were 48,131; enrollment at the University of Mississippi Medical Center was 1,737; and off-campus enrollment was 3,810. There were 2,552 students attending classes at the eight degree-granting off-campus centers and 597 students enrolled at the four resident centers. Extension classes were offered by five of the universities in different locations, and these classes served 661 persons in the fall of 1984.

The Board of Trustees, through its executive office and professional staff, oversees a budget of more than $600 million per year. The Board also has jurisdiction over the physical plants of the institutions it governs. Replacement costs for all the buildings and lands are estimated to be close to $1.28 billion.

The Board of Trustees governs the following units:

Based on this agreement the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce performs regulatory functions in the areas of meat inspection, feed and fertilizer inspection, fruit and vegetable inspection, swine health protection, consumer protection, exotic birds, weights and measures and public grain warehouses. Legislative Branch

Legislative Branch

The constitution places the legislative authority of Mississippi in a Legislature made up of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The membership is presently limited to 52 senators and 122 representatives.

The Legislature is the lawmaking body of state government. A constitutional provision that no money can be spent from the state's treasury unless the Legislature writes a law to do so, is the basis of the Legislature's power of the purse. The sole power of impeachment is vested in the House of Representatives, with the power to try impeachments vested in the Senate.

A state representative must be at least 21 years of age, and a state senator at least 25 years of age at the time he or she takes office. The other qualifications for the office of representative are resident citizen of the state for four years and of the county for two years immediately preceding the election, and a qualified elector of the state. The other qualifications for the office of senator are resident of the district to be represented for two years and a qualified elector of the state for four years.

Representatives and senators are elected to four year terms. The terms of all legislators expire every four years.

The presiding officer of the House of Representatives is the Speaker of the House, a state representative who is elected to the position by House members. The Senate's presiding officer is the Lieutenant Governor who is the president of the Senate.

Legislative members are administered an oath of office on the first day of the Regular Session of the year following their elections. The constitution requires the Legislature to convene yearly on the Tuesday after the first Monday in January. The Mississippi Legislature first convened in 1817.

During each year of its existence, the Legislature can be expected to send more than 500 bills to the Governor to be signed into law. Frequently, more than one-fourth of these are money bills (appropriations) to finance state government. As many as four to five times the number of bills that actually become laws will have been introduced for legislative consideration during each year.

The constitution stipulates that bills may originate in either chamber of the Legislature, and empowers each chamber to determine its own rules of procedure, except each is prohibited from adjourning for more than three days without the consent of the other or to another place other than where the two chambers are sitting.

Presently each body adopts its own rules; joint rules are also adopted to govern legislative procedures that affect the orderly flow of bills between the two houses. Legislative sessions last 90 days each year except during the first year of a new term when they lasts 125 days. Also, the Governor may call for a Special Session, should he deem it necessary. The periods between the legislative sessions are devoted to legislative studies by the members who work in committees to prepare bills for consideration in the upcoming sessions.

Legislative accountability to the people of Mississippi is provided by publication of all the Legislature's proceedings in journals. As well, the constitution requires that the doors of each House shall be open, "except in cases which may require secrecy."

Brad Dye

Brad Dye was born in Charleston, Mississippi. Graduating from Charleston High School where he was an Eagle Scout, he went on to the University of Mississippi to obtain his Bachelor of Business Administration degree in January, 1957. Two years later, he was awarded his law degree from the University's School of Law. While at Ole Miss, Dye served as President of the student body, was a member of Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity, and was named to the Hall of Fame.

In 1950, Dye served as a page in the U.S. House of Representatives for Rep. Jamie Whitten. After graduation from law school, he practiced law with his father in Grenada until 1961.

In 1959, he was elected to the Mississippi House of Representatives where he served as Vice Chairman of the Judiciary Committee and was a member of the Ways and Means, Public Health, Public Utilities, and Drainage Committees.

Senator James O. Eastland appointed Dye as an attorney for the staff of the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee in Washington, D.C. from 1961 to 1964.

In 1963, he was elected to the Mississippi State Senate and in 1965 resigned to accept an appointment by Governor Paul Johnson as a Commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

In 1968, he was named Executive Director of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board by Governor John Bell Williams. In 1971, he resigned that post to enter the race for State Treasurer. He was elected and served until 1976. He then served as President of Jackson Savings and Loan Association from January 1976 to March 1979.

In January 1980, Dye was sworn in as the 35th Lieutenant Governor of the State of Mississippi. In 1983, he won re-election and is now serving his second term.

Dye is married to the former Donna Bess Bailey of Coffeeville. They have three sons and are members of Galloway United Methodist Church, where he serves on the Administrative Board. Dye is a Mason and Shriner and has worked for the Heart Fund, Central Mississippi Red Cross, Andrew Jackson Council Boy Scouts, United Way of Capital Area, and as a YMCA coach of youth basketball and football.

* Appropriations, Revenue, Local and Private bills, and bills to restore suffrage are excluded from these deadlines. For purposes of the deadlines herein set forth, the term "Revenue bills" shall include only those bills whose primary purpose is to increase or decrease taxes or to authorize the issuance of bonds or the borrowing of money. Bills which are primarily for regulatory purposes which have revenue provisions included shall not be considered as Revenue bills for deadline purposes. The deletion from a bill of the features which made it a Revenue bill shall render the bill for deadline purposes.

 Initial conference reports on all bills must be filed with the Secretary/Clerk no later than the time of adjournment on the day prior to being called up and considered. Appropriations bills which actually appropriate money and are recommitted for further conference are excluded from the requirement that the subsequent conference report be filed and lay on table one (1) day before being consider; however, original action must be taken on all appropriations conference reports by 2:00 p.m. on the 84th/119th day, and subsequent reports must be filed no later than 6:00 p.m.

 Requests for general bills and constitutional amendments to be drafted must be made no later than 6:00 p.m. on the 14th/49th day. The Rules Committee of the House or Senate, as the case may be, may authorize any member of its respective House to make requests for one or more general bills or constitutional amendments to be drafted, after the expiration of the deadline for making such drafting requests but before the deadline for introduction of bills and constitutional amendments, upon a determination by the Rules Committee that such drafting requests are in response to conditions of an emergency nature arising subsequent to the deadline for making requests for general bills and constitutional amendments to be drafted.

Whenever the word "day" appears in this rule, it shall mean calendar day.

The above schedule shall not be deviated from, except by the passage of a concurrent resolution adopted by a vote of two-thirds (2/3) of the membership of the House and Senate present and voting.

Highlights on How a Bill Becomes a Law in the State of Mississippi

Drafting and Introduction

A bill must first be drafted in proper form. Legislative research and drafting offices are operated on a year-round basis in both the House and the Senate to assist the members with the necessary research and legal work involved in drafting bills in correct form.

Since the advent of annual sessions, a system of pre-filing has been instituted in both Houses. This means that bills may be written and introduced on an unofficial basis in the interim between sessions. For all practical purposes, the pre-filed bills are treated in the same manner as bills introduced when the Legislature is actually in session. At the time a member signifies that a bill is to be filed, it is placed on the Speaker's/President's desk for referral to Committee and, after referral, is given a number which it will retain throughout the legislative process. When the session convenes, the pre-filed bills are introduced officially into the records. Bills introduced after the session convenes are dropped into the "hopper" at the Clerk's/Secretary's desk. Bills must be typewritten on legal-size paper, double-spaced, with the title and name of author or authors on the outside and must be introduced in original form.

Referred to Committee

Each bill is referred to one or more of the standing committees in the House or Senate for study and recommendation. In the regular order of business, the bills are read by title and number, and the committee to which it has been referred is announced. All bills are listed on a daily introduction list, entered in the bill docket and committee books, and copies are reproduced. The bill itself is placed in a jacket and put into the committee box.

Reported by Committee

The committee to which a bill has been referred reports its recommendations to the House or Senate — it may report the bill "Do Pass," "Do Pass As Amended," "Committee Substitute Do Pass," or it may report the bill "Do Not Pass," which has the effect of killing the bill unless a Minority Report is filed within three days by one or more of the members of the committee who were present at the meeting at which the bill was reported.

If a bill has not been reported by a committee after reference, a motion to withdraw the bill may be filed.

When a bill has been reported favorably by a committee, it is placed on the calendar for House or Senate action. Separate divisions of the calendar are kept for bills reported by the appropriations, revenue, and local and private committees. Appropriations and Revenue bills have precedence over bills on the General Calendar.

The Legislature operates under a system of deadlines which set the limits of time in which bills may be introduced, reported from Committee, acted upon originally in each House, amendments considered from other House, and Conference Reports adopted. The deadlines are for the purpose of assuring an orderly flow of legislative action within the 90-day constitutional limitation of sessions. The first session of each administration has a limitation of 125 days and the deadlines are adjusted for the additional time.

Consideration by House/Senate

When a bill comes up in its regular order on the calendar, it is usually called up and handled by the Chairman of the committee to which it has been referred. The bill is read and debated by the House or Senate and, at this time, amendments may be proposed and either adopted or rejected. Other action is also possible and in order at this time - the bill may be recommitted to the committee for further study, it may be laid on the table, subject to call, it may be set for special order, or postponed to another date for action. An amendment to strike all after the enacting clause, if adopted, would kill the bill, or if a motion carried to indefinitely postpone the bill, it would be dead.

The Vote

A quorum must be present for the vote on final passage of any measure. Bills of a general nature require a majority of those present and voting for passage; appropriations bills require a majority of the elected membership, revenue bills require a three-fifths majority of those present and voting; constitutional amendments require a two-thirds majority of those present and voting; bills restoring suffrage or bills to grant a donation or gratuity to any person require two-thirds of the elected membership. Adoption of Conference Reports or concurrence in Senate or Houseamendments require the same vote as was required for original passage of the bill. After passage of a bill, it is subject to reconsideration for one whole legislative day. After the time has passed for reconsideration, any amendments that were adopted are engrossed into the bill, and it is sent to the other House.

House/Senate Action

When a bill reaches the other House, it goes through the same process of referral to Committee, report by Committee, and floor action. If a bill passes the other House without amendment, it is returned to the House of origin, enrolled, signed by the Speaker and the Lieutenant Governor, and presented to the Governor. If the other House adopts amendments to the bill, the bill and the accompanying amendments are returned to the House of origin, and the bill is placed on the calendar for concurrence or nonconcurrence in the amendments of the other House. Should one House concur, the other is notified, the bill is engrossed, enrolled, and presented to the Governor. If one House declines to concur in the amendments of the other, it may request a conference to work out the differences between the two Houses. A conference committee is composed of three members from each House, and if the report of the conference committee is adopted by both Houses, the bill is engrossed, enrolled, and presented to the Governor.

Governor's Action

The Governor must either approve a bill or return it with his objections to the House of its origin within five days (Sundays excepted), or it becomes law without his signature. (If the Legislature adjourns before the five days have expired, the Governor then has 15 days for consideration of the bill.) When a bill has been vetoed, the objections of the Governor are spread at large upon the Journal, it is reconsidered, and if two-thirds of those present and voting vote in favor of the bill, it is forwarded to the other House. If two-thirds of that House vote in favor of its passage over the Governor's veto, the bill then becomes a law.

The above steps in the passage of a bill are a simplified example of the parliamentary procedure involved in legislation. The processes seem very complex, but a knowledge of the rules of procedure and actual experience in observing a legislature in action help in understanding that the rules and procedures are to provide thorough study and debate of measures before they become law.

Trent Lott

Born on October 9, 1941, in Grenada County, Mississippi, Mr. Lott moved with his family to Pascagoula where his father was employed at Ingalls shipyard and his mother taught school.

He graduated from Pascagoula High School in 1959 and received his bachelor's degree in public administration from the University of Mississippi in 1963. After working as a field representative for the university, he earned his J.D. degree from the University of Mississippi School of Law in 1967.

Mr. Lott practiced law in Pascagoula before, in 1968, becoming administrative assistant to his predecessor, the late Congressman William M. Colmer. He was elected to his first term in 1972 and has been re-elected five times by voters in Mississippi's Fifth District.

In his first term, Mr. Lott was named to the Judiciary Committee, later taking part in the historic impeachment proceedings. In 1975, he won appointment to the Rules Committee and now serves as ranking Republican on the Subcommittee on Legislative Process.

Dedication to his work on tax and budget reform earned praise from the Wall Street Journal, which said Mr. Lott has one of the "sharpest minds in the House." That same dedication is one reason he became, according to the Library of Congress, the only Member of Congress from a Southern state to be elected Republican Whip since the office was created in 1897.

He is married to the former Tricia Thompson, of Pascagoula, and the couple have two children, Chet and Tyler. Mr. Lott is a 32° Mason, Lodge #419 F.&.A.M., Pascagoula, Mississippi; Scottish Rite Bodies, Gulfport, Mississippi; York Rite; Joppa Temple, Gulfport, Mississippi, charter class.

Elections

The topic of elections is of perpetual interest to Mississippians. From small town rallies to State conventions, our citizens enjoy the excitement and anticipation generated by our political process. This constant attention is one result of holding State and municipal elections in those years in which there are no federal elections. State elections are always held in the year preceding the presidential election year. So for Mississippians, every year is an election year.

Mississippi is making progress in bringing about changes in the State election process. On August 7, 1984, the United States Department of Justice approved House Bills 596 and 714 which eliminated dual registration for the citizens of our State and mandated that in municipalities of over 500 in population the city clerk would serve as a deputy registrar. This approval has resulted in easing voter registration and has been a step forward in updating election procedures.

Other election law reforms are currently under review by a Task Force sponsored by the Secretary of State. This Task Force, made up of people from across our State, has been working since June of 1984 to review laws and prepare legislation that would increase access to the electoral process for all the citizens of Mississippi while protecting the integrity of that process. The proposed legislation will be presented to the Legislature in January of 1985, and it is likely that several of the recommendations will become law.

Qualification for Registration

(1) United States citizen

(2) Resident of Mississippi

(3) Citizen 18 years of age or older

(4) Idiots and insane people are not qualified electors

(5) Persons convicted in a Mississippi court of murder, rape, bribery, theft, arson, obtaining money or goods under false pretense, perjury, forgery, embezzlement or bigamy are not qualified electors unless such persons have received pardons or had their rights of citizenship restored by the Legislature.

Procedure for Registration

An individual must register in person with the county registrar (circuit clerk) in the county of his/her residence, with any municipal clerk that is a deputy registrar in that county, or with a deputy registrar at a satellite location that has received prior approval. The registrar or deputy registrar shall register applicants at any time during regular office hours. The registrar shall maintain the registration form as a permanent record. All registrars' offices shall remain open until noon on the two Saturdays prior to each election. The county registrar and city clerk will determine the appropriate precinct designation. The registration deadline date for qualifying to vote in any election is 30 days prior to that election.

Absentee Balloting

Those qualified electors eligible to vote absentee are:

(1) Members of the Armed Services

(2) Members of the Merchant Marine and the American Red Cross

(3) Any disabled war veteran who is a patient in any hospital

(4) Any citizen of Mississippi temporarily residing outside the territorial limits of the United States and the District of Columbia

(5) Any spouse or dependent of the above

(6) Persons ill or incapacitated

(7) Employees engaged in interstate transportation

(8) Students, teachers, or administrators of higher education institutions

(9) Off shore employees

(10) Persons required to be 50 miles from home on election day because of employment.

Individuals can obtain information concerning procedure and deadline dates for absentee voting by contacting the Circuit Clerk's office in the County of his/her registration.
